February is American Heart Month

February presents an important opportunity to reinforce cardiovascular health awareness. The American Heart Association's annual initiative aligns with our commitment to supporting optimal cardiovascular outcomes for our Medicare Advantage population.

Clinical Nutrition Guidelines

Counsel patients on evidence-based dietary modifications, emphasizing increased intake of vegetables, whole grains, and lean proteins while reducing trans fats, sodium, and added sugars. Consider recommending gradual modifications, such as transitioning from whole to 1% milk to improve adherence.

Add In Exercise

Your patients can access comprehensive fitness benefits through OnePass, including gym memberships, streaming workouts, and home fitness kits. Consider prescribing structured exercise programs starting with 15-20 minutes of daily moderate activity, following appropriate pre-exercise screening protocols.

Smoking Cessation Support

Consider discussing smoking cessation with your patients at each visit. Even brief interventions can increase quit attempt rates. When patients express interest in quitting, we encourage developing a personalized cessation plan and scheduling regular follow-up visits to monitor progress and adjust support as needed.

Stress Management Interventions

Consider recommending evidence-based stress reduction techniques as part of cardiovascular risk management. Options include structured breathing exercises, physical activity, and behavioral health referrals when indicated.

Monitor Blood Pressure

Encourage regular blood pressure monitoring and documentation. Patients can utilize their eternalHealth OTC benefit for home monitors, or access free monitoring stations at network pharmacies.

Weight Management

Incorporate regular weight monitoring into treatment plans. Consider referrals to our network nutritionists and lifestyle modification programs when clinically indicated.

*Our Population Health team is available to support your patients' cardiovascular health goals. They can assist with care coordination, benefit navigation, and reinforcement of your clinical recommendations. Partner with us to optimize cardiovascular outcomes for our member population.
